

LUCKILY HE CALLED THE RIGHT PLACE

Translated by: Laura Nata

Like many parents and guardians, Mingo was confused about the system and how to get started. What made it even more difficult for him was the language barrier. He is a Spanish speaker and has had trouble in the past understanding most of the information and resources regarding his situation. Luckily he called the right place.

I called Families Helping Families of GNO because my daughter was having problems at school after receiving a diagnosis of Autism. I wanted to receive help but did not know where to go, so I talked to my daughter's pediatrician who recommended I call the FHF office.

The information I received enabled me to immediately start getting my daughter the services she needs. Thanks to you I now know about resources I did not know are available for her. This information will help my daughter's life by allowing her to receive the services she is entitled to like the waiver services. I also received a list of ABA therapists that's been very useful to help us find a therapist in dealing with her behavior at home and at school.

I am very grateful that this organization exists. I am excited to know about everything that is available for my daughter.
